

ASAG Workshop: Red to Yellow

Our goal for this workshop will be to highlight case studies, focusing on strategies that are working: making captive avian populations more sustainable, and moving Species Survival Plans from Red to Yellow (or Green)...

Red to Yellow Workshop...

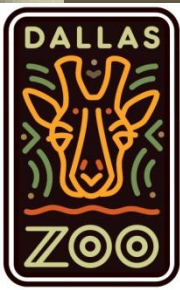

- As of March 2015, AZA manages 594 animal populations:
 - 40 Green SSP's
 - 315 Yellow SSP's
 - 134 Red SSP's
 - 105+ Candidate Programs
- Only 199 of these populations ACTUALLY matter:
 - 17 Green BIRD SSP's
 - 105 Yellow BIRD SSP's
 - 50 Red BIRD SSP's
 - 27+ Candidate BIRD Programs

Green with envy...

Let's keep this positive...

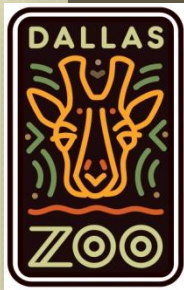

Are we making progress?

- 72 Red SSP's have become Yellow SSP's
 - Many due to initial studbook publication...
 - Others due to increases in reproduction, new institutional participants...
- 13 SSP's have become Green SSP's

Chilean Flamingo	Tawny Frogmouth
Chinstrap Penguin	Grey Crowned Crane
- 6 GSMP's have been formally established

Red Panda	Sumatran Tiger
Amur Leopard	Blue-crowned Laughingthrush
Matschie's Tree Kangaroo	Amur Tiger

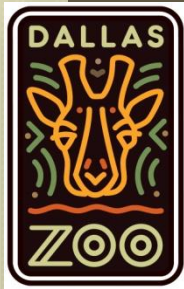

Are we making progress?

Are we making progress?

- Are we obsessing over Green status?
- 22 (or 21%) of our Yellow SSP's are projected to maintain $\geq 80\%$ of their genetic diversity over the next century.
- Is it safe to say that, with proper attention, these programs are “on the cusp” of transition to Green?
- There are no silver bullets...
